Dear Roger,

My very belated thanks for your nice note of last May and for the forwarding of your new book. I am thrilled that it is in print and that your project has thus come to fruition. I must say that I get a very big thrill out of seeing products of our advanced research program, and yours is certainly one of the finest.

I have enjoyed skimming the book and look forward to the day when I can find enough moments to call my own to be able to read it thoroughly. In the meantime, again thanks for your thoughtfulness.

Yours,
